If you answered, “YES” to all the about questions, we extend great congratulations! You and your partner have created a loving, satisfying, functional relationship you cherish.

If you answered “NO” to one or more of the questions, your relationship may be improved though engaging in the counseling process. Only you know and experience how significantly these areas of relationship are detracting from your happiness as a couple.

We advise that you ask your partner to take this survey and seriously discuss your results.

To ensure that things do not get worse and to have your relationship function to its true potential, it is advisable to contact a credible relationship counselor for a more thorough relationship assessment and recommendations for improvement.
